

Higher Education Financial Wellness Forum

We are excited to announce that registration is now open for the Coalition of Higher Education Assistance Organizations' (COHEAO) and the Higher Education Financial Wellness (HEFWA) 2018 Annual Higher Education Financial Wellness Forum. A draft agenda is also available here. The event will be held January 31st at the Ritz Carlton Pentagon City, located just minutes from Washington D.C. and Reagan National Airport by Public Transportation or car.

Read More Here

Fixing Financial Literacy Education

Everyone is trying to get financial literacy education into the hands of students. However the timing and method to best introduce the education - in a way that benefits the students, the schools, and the education, is still up for debate.

Read More Here

Why Millennials Aren't Afraid to Talk About Money

Millennials continue to break social norms. A study suggests they openly discuss finances. Their openness regarding their finances creates a strong possibility for financial literacy.

Read More Here

Defining Colleges' Liability for Fraud Claims

The Trump administration is revamping the borrower-defense rule established under Obama. What does this mean for college's liability fraud claims?

Read More Here

Colleges Try To Help Students Manage Their Finances

Many colleges are struggling with the same issues for their students: personal finance and student loan management. Discover other schools' approaches to combating the problem.

Read More Here

COHEAO Conference Details

The 2018 COHEAO Annual Conference
January 28 - 31, 2018
Washington, D.C.

Read More Here

Agenda

“40% of parents report they taught their child how to manage money. but only 18% of students agree.”

- 2016 US Bank Student and Personal Finance Study

COHEAO Resources

This email was sent by: Todd Woodlee 1101 Vermont Avenue N.W. Suite 400 , Washington DC DC 20005
To unsubscribe click: here