YOUR MONTHLY NEWS & UPDATES

A new survey from the National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE) finds that nearly 9 in 10 (88%) Americans say the COVID-19 crisis is causing stress on their personal finances. More than half (54%) say they're worried about not having enough saved, while almost half (48%) are worried about their ability to pay bills.

Op-ed: Why financial literacy matters in an economic crisis

Financial literacy cannot predict or remedy a crisis, but financial education will play a pivotal role in the economic recovery of our country.

FEMA Spotlight

The mission of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is to help people before, during, and after disasters. FEMA is helping to “build a culture of preparedness” that stretches across the United States. They use scientific research to help people build a culture of preparedness. On April 1, 1979, President Jimmy Carter signed an Executive Order that created FEMA. Since that day, FEMA has remained focused on protecting and serving people.

Student Financial Wellness Survey (SFWS)

Participating in the SFWS is 100% free for schools. As an institutional participant, you'll receive reports about your students and the financial issues that threaten their paths toward academic success and graduation.

This year we have added question sets on both COVID-19 (coronavirus) impacts and technology security (reliable access to internet, devices, and learning platforms). Attached you will find a document describing the Fall 2020 SFWS. Please let me know if we can set up a time to discuss the project. We encourage you to sign up no later than September 1st for the October launch of the survey. Thanks!
