

COHEAO

Coalition of Higher Education Assistance Organization

May Financial Wellness Newsletter

YOUR MONTHLY NEWS & UPDATES

It's graduation season, which means that college students everywhere are getting a heavy dose of advice for finding their passions, chasing success, and engaging the real world.

"There is nothing more beautiful than finding your course as you believe you bob aimlessly in the current. Wouldn't you know that your path was there all along, waiting for you to knock, waiting for you to become. This path does not belong to your parents, your teachers, your leaders, or your lovers. Your path is your character defining itself more and more everyday like a photograph coming into focus." Jodie Foster

Upcoming Events

Register Today!

GLBA and Red Flags Training Wednesday, May 29, 2019 2:00 PM EST

Protecting the privacy of students is an increasing challenge in today's environment. COHEAO is committed to helping our members and the higher education industry remain compliant with the many requirements. This presentation will include an overview of and refresher on the Gramm Leach Bliley Act and Red Flag Rules. You won't want to miss this opportunity to enhance your knowledge and fulfill the requirement for annual training on GLBA.

An Education in International Payments Mitigating Risk and Ensuring Compliance Tuesday, June 18, 2019 2:00 PM EST

With an increasing number of students enrolled in higher education in the U.S. coming from abroad, colleges and universities must adapt their administrative and operational processes to cater for a global customer base, or risk alienating a significant proportion of their student body. But what exactly does this mean? In a payments sense, it means creating a payments ecosystem that is transparent, fast, secure, integrated, and simple-to-use for all students, no matter where in the world they are from.

"Money Smart Conversation: Financial Literacy Tools from FDIC" Thursday, June 20, 2019 1:00 PM EST

Teaching students about money management should be fun and engaging. This helps to ensure their knowledge and desire to learn is not based on a requirement, but based on a wanting to be money smart. Tools and resources is the most valuable components to have when teaching financial literacy. Join us as we discuss the Money Smart resource from FDIC that gives you a start to finish approach to financial literacy. The resources that will be explored are completely free to use. As we unpack this conversation with an FDIC expert you don't want to miss the insights that will be shared and how to best maximize the tools provided by Money Smart and gain industry insight into best practices when teaching financial literacy.

Millennials' Engagement with Online Financial Education Resources and Tools:

New Survey Insights and Recommendations

In today's economy, individuals sometimes at an early age are required to make important and complex financial decisions, many of them with long-lasting consequences. In executing these decisions, people may tap into many resources, including ones online.

**Read More**

As College Debt Rises, So Does Interest in Teaching Financial Literacy

After languishing for a few years, support for teaching money-management skills to high school students has reignited, financial literacy advocates say. They attribute much of the newfound interest to worries about mushrooming student debt.

Read More

Let's Talk About It!

A billionaire's surprise vow to pay Morehouse graduates' loans is part of the newest trend in the student-debt crisis

The investor Robert F. Smith, who's ranked by Forbes as the 163rd-richest person in the US, with a net worth of $5 billion, shocked graduating Morehouse College students over the weekend by announcing that he was paying off their student loans — an issue other billionaires have begun tackling.

Read More