

COHEAO

Coalition of Higher Education Assistance Organization

September Financial Wellness Newsletter

YOUR MONTHLY NEWS & UPDATES

"Financial literacy not only involves the ability to count your money, it also test your ability to evaluate the cost and benefit associated with each decision you make."

-Wayne Chirisa, Business Coach and Entrepreneur

Upcoming Events

Building an Inclusive Campus Community: Committing to The Work of Change

Thursday, September 24, 2020 2:00 pm EST
Registration Available Soon at www.coheao.com

Join our panel of experts from colleges and universities across the United States as we discuss how their campuses are working to build a community of inclusion and combat racism. Administrators from various schools will discuss the changes their campuses have made to facilitate change and their vision of an anti-racist campus.

COVID-19 Crisis Poses Threat to Financial Stability

With the COVID-19 virus the global

Financial Stability Report shows that the financial system has already felt a dramatic impact due to the pandemic's severity and length. Prices of risk assets have fallen, suffering more than what they experienced in 2008 and 2009.

Read More!

8 Simple Ways You Can Become Financially Literate On Your Own

According to a CFSI survey of more than 5,000 Americans it was discovered that only 28% Americans are considered 'financially healthy'. Being financially literate means to understand:

- Budgeting to manage your money
- Setting financial goals
- Paying bills and saving money
- Basics of loans (personal, debt, mortgages, etc)
- Credit cards and credit scores
- How investing works, 401k's, the stock market, etc

Simple Steps to achieve Financial literacy On Your Own:

- 1) Hit the Books
- 2) Read Magazines and Online Publishers
- 3) Use Financial Management Tools

Read More!